

ACSA Webinar presenter Jon Andrews

BIOGRAPHY

Jon Andrews is a teacher with 22 year's professional experience. His career has spanned working in a variety of school settings in the UK and Australia. Within these schools, Jon has occupied senior leadership roles, been a subject and faculty leader and he has designed and led schools and sector professional development programs and strategic initiatives. He has also worked on regional and national advisory projects aimed at developing teacher practices and supporting the implementation of promising approaches. Jon has been deeply involved in the design, implementation and sustaining of coaching approaches to support a variety of individuals, teams and those with specific projects at different scales.

In 2018, Jon co-edited 'Flip the System Australia: What Matters in Education' with Deborah Netolicky and Cameron Paterson. He has also authored articles and book chapters concerning teaching and learning practices and spoken at a number of local and national conferences and workshops.